Brief Description of the course:

Statistical methods are necessary for analysis and interpretation of data. To select the appropriate statistical method, one has to know the specifications of the concerned models so that proper statistical methods can be applied for data analysis. Thus, statistics has now become the pillar subject in the area of data sciences. Two main statistical methods used in data analysis are: descriptive statistics, which summarizes data using indices viz. measures of central tendency, dispersion, moments, skewness, kurtosis and the rest, is statistical inference which involves the notion of probability. Knowledge regarding statistical methods is also a compulsion for preparation of dissertation papers in the final semester of under graduate course in the discipline of sciences and is also required for pursuing research activities in higher studies.

The certificate course on Basic Statistical Methods, as stated earlier, was started on the 22nd of March, 2023. Before the commencement of the course, a meeting was held with the members of IQAC and the Principal of the college. After ratification of the proposal of the course and consent from the Principal, the course was officially inaugurated on the aforesaid date. A WhatsApp group was opened in order to disseminate the information of the course on 18th March, 2023. The lecture serious was of 3 months+ period. It was actually operated on both the off-line and online platforms so as to maintain the continuity of the course over the period of time. After completion of the course, an online test as well as oral test was conducted for the students. Summing the marks obtained in both tests, students were entitled with their respective grades in the certificates. At the end of the course, the students who completed the course successfully were given a feedback form regarding a qualitative judgment of the course. Thus, the certificate course was completed with assistance of the college and compliments from the students.

Purpose of the course:

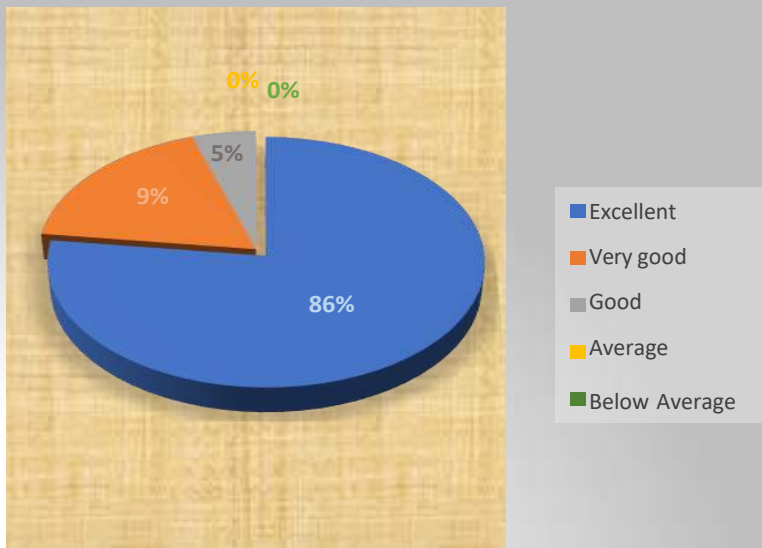

The aim of the course is to acquaint students to have skillful knowledge regarding elementary statistical methods. This course will be an effective value addition to the students when they will go for hands on training on statistics. The course will not only upsurge their knowledge regarding statistics but it will be useful for solving problems in various field of science and social sciences in the under graduate course. Moreover, the course is particularly useful for the students who are interested in financial markets like- money market, capital market, share market etc as it could extend their rational expectation power. The course is designed in conformity with National Education Policy 2020, so that the students of various disciplines having field works could derive the benefit of it, particularly the classes of sampling distribution and statistical inferences. This course can be considered as the plinth of pursuing research in higher studies for the students.

Conclusion:

The certificate course which was of 3+ month duration was concluded with active participation of the students and academic support from the Principal and professors of various departments. However, it is to be mentioned that there were many students who were registered for the course; but tests were conducted only for those students who were regular in the classes. The course will help assist the students who are pursuing higher studies in various universities and research institutes.

Certificate Course on Computer Science and applicability in UG courses organised by The Department of Physics, S.R. Fatepuria College

About The Course

Computer science is indispensable in today's world, permeating every field from business to healthcare. Its integration into undergraduate courses ensures students develop crucial problem-solving, analytical, and technical skills essential for the modern workforce. The goal of the computer science curriculum is to provide students with the knowledge and tools that will allow them to design and implement effective, economical, and creative solutions for the needs of individuals, society, and the high-tech economy. On the basis of the CBCS syllabus and Curriculum and Credit Framework for Undergraduate Programme (CCFUP) as per NEP, 2020 it is important to mention the field-work, SEC and Research work for conducting the Add on course properly. It is essential for finding solutions to problems, expanding knowledge and advancing our understanding of the world.

Course Outcomes

- Learners will be able to compute the mathematical calculation using Excel.
- Learners will develop important skills on python programming.
- Learners will be able to code useful formulas using C++.
- Learners will be able to utilise computer applications in proper and easier way.

Objectives

- To develop the skills of computer application.
- To introduce students with basic skills of coding.
- To enhance knowledge of computational mathematics.
- To equip the learners to with useful application.

Objectives:

The citizens of India take pride in their affiliation with the world's largest democratic nation, wherein the pursuit of education is often articulated as a means to fostering good citizenship. Regrettably, a substantial portion of our student populace remains largely unacquainted with the ethos underpinning the Indian Constitution. As conscientious and civically engaged members of society, it is imperative that we cultivate a rudimentary understanding of our constitutional framework, regardless of our academic disciplines. Consequently, the Department of Political Science at our institution endeavours to inaugurate an adjunct certificate program titled "Indian Polity." A constitution epitomizes a corpus of fundamental precepts or supreme laws delineating the governance of a state or nation.

TITLE OF THE COURSE
"CERTIFICATE COURSE ON HUMAN RIGHTS"

INTRODUCTION:

"All human beings are born free and equal in dignity and rights. They are endowed with reason and conscience and should act towards one another in a spirit of brotherhood".

— Article 1 of the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights (UDHR)

Human rights are commonly understood as "inalienable fundamental rights to which a person is inherently entitled simply because she or he is a human being." Human rights are thus conceived as universal (applicable everywhere) and egalitarian (the same for everyone). These rights may exist as natural rights or as legal rights, in both national and international law. The doctrine of human rights in international practice, within international law, global and regional institutions, in the policies of states and in the activities of non-governmental organizations, has been a cornerstone of public policy around the world.

Human rights are rights inherent to all human beings, whatever our nationality, place of residence, sex, national or ethnic origin, colour, religion, language, or any other status. We are all equally entitled to our human rights without discrimination. These rights are all interrelated, interdependent and indivisible.

Universal human rights are often expressed and guaranteed by law, in the forms of treaties, customary international law, general principles and other sources of international law. International human rights law lays down obligations of Governments to act in certain ways or to refrain from certain acts, in order to promote and protect human rights and fundamental freedoms of individuals or groups.

In its report on human rights in India during 2010, Human Rights Watch stated India had "significant human rights problems". They identified lack of accountability for security forces and impunity for abusive policing including "police brutality, extrajudicial killings, and torture" as major problems. An independent United Nations expert in 2011 expressed concern that she found human rights workers and their families who "have been killed, tortured, ill-treated, disappeared, threatened, arbitrarily arrested and detained, falsely charged and under surveillance because of their legitimate work in upholding human rights and fundamental freedoms.

The situation of human rights in India is a complex one, as a result of the country's large size and tremendous diversity, its status as a developing country and a sovereign, secular, democratic republic, and its history as a former colonial territory. The Constitution of India provides for Fundamental rights, which include freedom of religion. Clauses also provide for Freedom of Speech, as well as separation of executive and judiciary and freedom of movement within the country and abroad.
